

THIS MAILER COULD SAVE JOBS

Jam-packed with deals you don't want to miss supporting local businesses, and it's printed on certified sustainable paper. Win win.

#supportchch

Supporting local businesses is extremely important right now.

You've been hearing it for weeks, it's been explained in many ways - but it's important to remember simple economics sits behind all those support local campaigns.

If we spend locally, we can help save jobs.

If Christchurch households that have the means continue to spend in their community, our economy can bounce back faster.

As the city's sustainable economic development agency, ChristchurchNZ is focused on delivering the city-led economic recovery package in partnership with the Christchurch City Council and its other trading companies, and central government.

With this in mind ChristchurchNZ and Ovato NZ are publishing this mailer, encouraging local spending which can ultimately save jobs. We want to showcase the amazing business community that exists here in Ōtautahi Christchurch.

Ovato NZ understands supporting local well. Their Christchurch business can be traced back nearly 100 years. Their loyal-to-local business model led them to donate the printing of this publication, and its distribution to more than 120,000 Christchurch households.

They are also aware of the importance of sustainable printing practices. They are FSC certified and 98 per cent of their waste is recycled. As the largest commercial printer in the city, their efforts to preserve our environment have a big impact.

This mailer is stacked with deals and discounts from local businesses. Don't miss this opportunity to explore our city businesses and support them through tough times. Get out there, get spending, and let's get through this together.

“It’s so important that our locals are actively involved in the Christchurch experience we’ve got. If they experience what the city has to offer, what the region has to offer, they become our biggest advocates.”

Downtown, CBD, the city centre ...

After nearly a decade, the CBD was finding its feet. Businesses were returning, as were office workers, retail stores, thriving bars and restaurants. How good was it to see City Mall teeming, and balconies on The Terrace and at Riverside packed on a sunny evening? Dreamy.

But COVID-19 hit this area hard. Unlike other parts of town, the city centre lacks residents. So, while everyone was keeping their movement local, the city centre was mostly empty. Across the whole city, spending was down 83%.

Mike Percasky, co-owner of Riverside Market and ardent city centre supporter, said "there just isn't the foot traffic and community right at businesses doors like there is in the suburbs".

"It felt like everything came together this summer, and for the first time since the earthquakes it really felt like we had our central city back," Percasky said.

"It's heart-breaking that after nine years of rebuilding, we get hit with this pandemic right when things were really looking up for Christchurch inner-city businesses."

... we all have a connection to this part of the town.

Annabel Turley, Unichem Cashel Pharmacy owner and chairperson of the Christchurch Central City Business Association (CCBA), said without a resurgence in central city spending, we risk a doughnut effect and "we won't have a heart of the city".

"That's really important. If people want a beating heart of the city, they need to come in and spend time, come shopping, come eating, come drinking," Turley said.

SO HOW CAN YOU HELP?

Spending locally is the key to saving our economy. The CBD requires visitors from outside the four avenues to sustain business. It's that simple.

Level 1 means freedom, so get out and explore your city centre. Sit on the balconies overlooking the Ōtākaro Avon River, browse the shops down our laneways and central city precincts, and find a new look at one of the many retail stores on High St and City Mall. Satisfy your foodie cravings and experience the endless fine and casual dining spots. It's all here ready to be rediscovered.

Tell your friends about the great time you had in the CBD, post about it on social media, and spread the message. The city centre needs ambassadors, and that can be you.

Let's build that momentum again. Let's support the city centre. You can help save jobs and keep the heart of our city beating.

FIRST HOUR FREE PARKING in Council parking buildings

Avoid the winter weather and park under cover in the Council's Lichfield Street or Art Gallery parking buildings.

Your first hour is free so you can make the most of central city shopping and attractions.

CENTRAL CITY STREETS GET AN UPGRADE

Two busy central city streets are getting a makeover. Hereford and Victoria streets have had a rough time over the past nine years with earthquakes, demolitions and rebuilds - now it's their turn to be put right. The Council is upgrading underground pipes, repairing footpaths and creating spaces for people to sit, socialise and enjoy. Businesses in both areas are pleased the work is now on the fast-track.

If you're supporting Christchurch businesses, you're supporting the whole economy not just the person you're buying things off.

If people want a beating heart of the city, they need to come shopping, come eating, come drinking.

Annabel Turley, CCBA chairperson and owner of Unichem Cashel Pharmacy.

Here at Ovato we love Christchurch, and we are excited to support the local business community. We know we can deliver your message the most direct way available - via more than 120,000 letterboxes. Let's support local and give a hand when it's most needed.
